About Seminar

Personal success and business success relies largely on the ability to communicate. NLP (Neuro Linguistic Programming) offers state of the art communication techniques that will enable people to achieve extraordinary results. NLP began with the study of excellent communicators. What is the difference that makes the difference in feeling comfortable and acknowledged by someone, even if they are disagreeing with what you are saying? How is it that some people you meet you instantly like – while others you cannot wait to get away from? Why can you talk to some people for hours and it seems like minutes? The answer to all these questions is rapport – a foundation stone of NLP and the most important process in any communication. Rapport is the ability to enter someone else's world, to make them feel you understand them, that you have a strong common bond. Rapport is the ability to see each other's point of view, to be on the same wavelength and to appreciate each other's feelings. Research has shown that in the understanding of a received communication, 7% is contained in the words used, 38% is contained in the tone and style of voice and 55% is contained in the physiology of the deliverer. Yet how many people actually study the factors which control over half of their communication?. This seminar outlines this 55% of the communication i.e. physiology and steps involved to get into rapport with others so that meaningful communication can take place.
